Comments:

I am very concerned that the Calfed process is not looking closely enough at water conservation options. I don't think that tax payer money should be used to build new and expanded dams, canals or reservoirs until we have seen how well the first stage works and we try alternative solutions. There is a tremendous amount of water waste in this state and all taxpayers should not be penalized for this. The most valuable asset the state of California has is it's natural environment and we need to do all we can to preserve it.
